

Lexington County Boards and Commissions Duties and Responsibilities

Many important civic responsibilities are exercised by members of boards and commissions. Depending on their legal functions and duties, boards and commissions may have policy, management, quasi-governmental, quasi-judicial or simply advisory authority. County government has varying relationships with a variety of boards and commissions. County Council appoints one or more of the members on the following boards and commissions that serve the county or region.

For current vacancies see Council Agenda under Boards and Commissions.
